A high-quality education is touted as essential for increasing opportunity and equity for children from all backgrounds. Yet, for our highest risk students, this remains an elusive proposition. How do we keep the promise that we have made to educate ALL students?

Monday, January 18, 2016
4:10 p.m. • Room 241
VKC/One Magnolia Circle Building

Julie A. Washington, Ph.D.
Professor of Educational Psychology and Special Education and Communication Disorders; Program Director, Communication Sciences and Disorders
Georgia State University